

Pro-Passion Projects Journalism Internship in Africa, Ghana

UNIVERSITÄT LEIPZIG

📍 Location: Africa, Ghana

📅 Duration: Flexible (2 weeks – 3 months)

📁 Project Placement: Daily Guide Newspaper, Radio Stations, Online News Platforms

Background:

Pro-Passion Projects' Journalism Internship in Ghana is designed for students and aspiring journalists who want to gain hands-on experience in media and communications. Interns will work with newspapers, radio stations, TV networks, and online platforms, reporting on current affairs, social issues, and cultural topics. They will have opportunities to interview local people, write news articles, create digital content, and explore investigative journalism while learning from experienced journalists.

Role & Responsibilities:

As a journalism intern, you will:

✍️ News Writing & Reporting: Research and write news stories on politics, human rights, health, and community issues.

🗣️ Interviewing: Conduct interviews with locals, experts, and policymakers to develop compelling news content.

📷 Photography & Multimedia: Capture images and videos to accompany news articles and digital content.

📻 Radio & TV Broadcasting: Assist in live and pre-recorded radio or television programs.

📱 Social Media & Digital Journalism: Manage and create content for online platforms, helping to boost engagement and storytelling.

Intern Working Hours:

Monday – Friday (9 AM – 3 PM)

📺 Some evening or weekend assignments may be required for live reporting.

What You'll Gain:

✓ Practical Journalism Experience – Work in real media environments.

✓ Cultural Immersion – Learn about African media, politics, and society.

✓ Networking Opportunities – Build professional connections in the journalism and media industry.

✓ Portfolio Development – Get published work and gain credibility.

✓ Certificate & Reference Letter – Provided upon successful completion of the internship.
